

WE PAVE THE WAY
FOR NEW IDEAS

Profile

Builder of transportation and urban infrastructure, quarry operator, industrial materials producer and road equipment, maintenance and related services specialist. In 2010, this 40,000-strong subsidiary of the VINCI Group generated revenues of €7,900 million.

History

Eurovia grew out of successive mergers involving road industry companies founded in the early part of the twentieth century: Cochery Bourdin Chaussé, Viafrance, and Entreprise Jean Lefebvre.

Business lines

As a developer of roads, highways, train, light-rail and subway lines, airport and light-rail platforms, and industrial and commercial sites, Eurovia is a world leader in transportation infrastructure and urban development. It is also a vertically integrated company that controls its supply chain through a network of quarries, binder-production plants, and asphalt-production units. Eurovia also provides infrastructure maintenance services as well as design, coordination, and consulting services to public-private partnership projects.

Our commitment

Eurovia's business model is built on values that promote civic responsibilities. The Company embraces principles set out in the VINCI Group's charter of ethical business conduct, including trust, respect, solidarity, putting people first, fostering individual initiative and teamwork – values that define the Company's identity. Eurovia strives to be a responsible employer, defending equal opportunity in the workplace and fostering occupational health and safety.
